

SOUNDS FOR HOPE CONCERT
FOR NATIONAL CHILD ABUSE AWARENESS MONTH

A benefit concert for the Children's Justice Center of Salt Lake County

SALT LAKE CITY - The Children's Justice Center of Salt Lake County proudly presents an inspiring and unforgettable benefit concert on Saturday, April 9 in the University of Utah's Libby Gardner Hall at 7:30 p.m. in celebration of April's National Child Abuse Awareness Month.

Join the children for an evening of beautiful sounds and artistry helping child victims of crime, sponsored by Codale Electric. The evening's nationally renowned line-up features performances by Salt Lake's own Kelly Parkinson, Jed Moss and the elite children of the Gifted Music School along with other special guest performers.

The Children's Justice Center serves a vital role in advocating for the best interest of children to ensure their protection, promote justice and provide families with quality medical and counseling services. The center is an exceptional program that contributes major advancements in the field of child abuse investigations.

For ticket sales and sponsorship information, please visit www.soundsforhopeconcert.org or call (801) 930-0310. To donate directly to the charity, visit www.cjcslc.org.

About the Children's Justice Center - "Where Small Voices Can Be Heard"

The Children's Justice Center of Salt Lake County (CJC) is an award-winning program that serves over 1,500 a year to empower children who are victims of sexual abuse, physical abuse or other crimes to speak out and shatter the silence. The center provides a safe and family-friendly environment for children and teens where they receive coordinated services during the investigative process so healing can begin. Please visit the CJC online at www.cjcslc.org and join the Facebook and Twitter group!

- CJCSLC-